“RGW Security Services, provides well trained, well maintained and a professional staff of unarmed officers that offer you the piece of mind you deserve.”

The unarmed field security officer is the foundation of any security agency, and at RGW Security Services, we offer our clients the absolute best officers available.

All of our field officers are well trained and meet the stringent criteria set for all RGW employees. Each officer is instructed in the RGW policies and procedures which were created solely to provide for the needs of our clients.

At the outset of all new contracts, the security officers that are assigned to a particular location, along with their direct supervisor, are introduced to the client and given a tour of the property, access points, trouble spots and all check points. As part of our normal procedures; post orders -specifically designed to meet the client's security needs- are prepared and approved. It is key for both our officers and direct supervisors to become proficient in performing the post orders according to the client's requirements.

During the contract, regular performance checks are made on all field officers to insure proper procedures and client satisfaction are met. In addition, supervisors and company representatives to regular field checks and work shifts themselves to guarantee client needs are being met.

RGW has been providing quality service and protection for nearly fifteen years and we can provide client lists and recommendations upon request.
